SAD RESULTS

Traced to Overworked Minds and Bodies.

SUICIDES, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, PARALYSIS.

Heart Diseases and Sudden Deaths.

One after another of the great men of the nation are failing, and most of them in middle life, all victims to overwork. Can we afford to lose such men? Those men died of nervous prostration in the midday of their usefulness, and in the last year how many business men and women have sudden y sunk out of the ranks either into an untimely grave or to a worse fate. The business men of the nation are killing themselves by overwork of mind, if not of body, and we call it "nervous prostration." The mystic class is suffering in the same way. Overwork, the pressure of the times, worry, fret and anxiety, are rendering us a weak and suffering generation. No man would commit suicide if his nervous system was in a state of perfect health. It is inevitably the result of nervousness in some form or other. Now, is it not time that we, as a people, should seriously examine into this matter, and seek a remedy, if one can be found? The nervous system must be sustained and built up in proportion to its waste or this integration or we must suffer. The facts prove that this waste is not supplied by our ordinary diet and living. The refined manner of living now does not give to us in our food enough of nerve food, or enough of that which goes to make nerve matter, to meet the demand made upon the nervous system and the result is nervous prostration paralysis, apoplexy, despondency, neuralgia, headache, sleeplessness and premature death. We all know that these are facts, and acknowledge the importance of a remedy. Now, we shall not prescribe, I can say, after years of experience in their use, and sustained by the testimony of many thousands in this city and elsewhere, that my CELERY AND CHAMOMILE PILLS do and will supply that needed material to the nervous system. They are a nerve food. Their first effect is to promote digestion, thereby curing dyspepsia, secondly, they enter into the nervous fluid and create nerve matter, and in this way permanently cure nervous prostration, despondency, headache, neuralgia, nervousness, etc., by removing the cause of these diseases and securing the system against paralysis and apoplexy etc. They contain no opium or morphia, nor any narcotic whatever, and can safely be used for any length of time—The extract of celery in the great nerve master, and the extract of chamomile the great promoter of digestion and nervous sedative, but their combined effects is wonderful, indeed, curing cases that have resisted a lother treatment, even by the skill of physicians. Anybody and everybody, I don t care who they are, would be improved by taking one of these pills after breakfast and dinner for a while. People that want a clear complexion and smooth skin, free of disease, must keep their nervous system in a healthy state. Domestic care and business anxiety often make quite as serious inroads upon the nervous system as the higher order of mental work, and thousands of people are eking out a miserable existence, suffering, from nervous weakness and sick and nervous headache, that could be perfectly cured by availing themselves of this remedy. It is certainly worth a trial in every case. The claims of this preparation are recognized by the profession, and I am glad to say, am largely used and recommended by them. And why should it not be so? It is not a patent medicine. It is the result of my own experience in the practice of medicine. As to my professional standing I will let the following letter from Prof Samuel Chew, speak for itself.

Respectfully,

DR C W BENSON

BALTIMORE, Sept 16, 1860

Dr C W Benson is a graduate of the School of Medicine of the University of Maryland. While a pupil of that institution he was distinguished for industry and zeal in the pursuit of professional knowledge and in his examination for the degree of Doctor of Medicine was entirely satisfactory to his instructors. I have known him for several years and believe him to be a physician eminently prepared to be useful, and also of unexceptionable moral character. I take great pleasure in commending him to the esteem and confidence of the community.

CATARRH DESCRIBED.

Catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nasal cavities commencing a little above and behind the palate, extending upwards to the nose and is not confined to the nasal cavities, but in its progress it invades the natrum and air chambers of the head, and sinuses which cover a portion of the face in it extend to the lower part of the throat. Some sufferers feel as if their whole face and head were in a state of ferocious inflammation so excessive is the flow of matter, which quantities as secreted, we cannot wonder at the result. Just consider for a moment the intricate structure of the nasal cavities all of which are lined with the same delicate mucous membrane as the nose and throat, hence the contaminating influence upon any portion affects the whole. When the upper part of it is first taken it produces involved the larynx, the bronchial tubes, perhaps, finally the fatal consumption of this terrible disgusting and dangerous disease. Of course the victim has tried snuffs and washes without number but has failed to receive any permanent benefit, because something more was required. It is found by Joseph Bragg's Medical Compound Vapor Inhaler in connection with his other remedies which are used in the treatments which directions for use. The most desperate cases can be cured even where the nose is small and hearing are partially or completely destroyed. Suffers from Catarrh Deafness Larynx, Throat, Consumption or Bronchitis call at the office of Joseph Bragg & Co. 19 Bromfield St Boston Mass. Charges reasonable. Medicine sent by express to any address on receipt of price. Office hours 9 to 12 and 2 to 5 daily. Sundays excepted. Consultation free.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE

The cry of woman is heard on every hand. The most obstinate diseases that afflict mankind are peculiar to women. How observant we are, if we can find a single woman in whose face there is not written a tale of suffering. Every other woman we meet is not such a good soul as she seems. And we all feel for the time as we look at the sad faces that we meet in the street. Indeed no woman can be found in all conditions of life. The very poorest girl that we meet in their tattered rags, is not free from pain. Who cannot call hundreds to mind at the sight of the very name? Who cannot see, with the eye which takes in at once the whole woman from top to toe? Men do not suffer in this way. Men are not troubled with every extremity and change in the weather. Men are not troubled with every small sound that comes to their ears. But it may be said of men as it is of children, that they are not to be seen and not heard. Between men and women of some race and color, there is a difference of nature, which exists in all climates, and which will exist to the end of time. This difference is a superiority upon the part of the male sex in all the virtues, defenses and faculties of mind and body. We are willing to admit that we are cowardly because we cannot be insulted and admits at once. If they but only knew how we avoid, how positively we shrink from the strife, they would be astonished at our cowardice. But we are not cowards. We only know when we are insulted, and we only know how to avoid the insult. We cannot fight, because we are not physically strong enough to fight. We cannot fight, because we are not mentally strong enough to fight. We cannot fight, because we are not morally strong enough to fight. Who Has Not Been Bilious?

Probably nobody. But who is entirely free from some extent the effects of this most common of all diseases? Who has not at times suffered from a sick headache, with all its attendant evils, nausea, sour stomach, vomiting, etc.? Who has not been troubled with constipation, or costiveness, or piles, or some of the many other results of a deranged liver? Who has not felt dull, drowsy, stupid, and generally miserable, when a few doses of Ayer's Pills would have restored him to health? Who has not, when suffering from any of the above symptoms, been urged by friends to try this or that remedy, which, after all, did him no good? Who has not, in short, been disappointed in every effort to find a cure for his complaint? Ayer's Pills are the result of many years of careful study, by one of the most eminent chemists of the age, to find a remedy for the diseases of the liver. That they have performed, in this direction, cures unparalleled in the history of medicine, is proved by the certificates of thousands, who have been restored to health by their use. They are the cheapest pill in the market, because they are the most effective. They are sugar-coated, purely vegetable, and the mildest and best aperient that can be used by children or delicate females. They are in universal demand by druggists and physicians throughout the civilized world, and are the only pills that can be relied on as a cure for liver complaint. Ayer's Pills are prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

OUR STATE REDEEMED!

While it is doubtful whether the complete returns will show an actual majority for Mr. Davis over the combined Greenback, Democratic and scattering votes, there is no longer any doubt that the State is fully redeemed from the control of the truck-and-dicker combination, by the majorities in both branches of the Legislature which insure the election of the Republican candidate for Governor and put all branches of the State Government again into the hands of the Republican Party. That is a triumph so complete and satisfying in its substantial fruits, that the question whether our candidate shall have an excess or a lack of a few hundreds on the popular vote, is comparatively unimportant. We have at any rate practically wiped out the combined opposition majority of last year, and with a Republican Governor, Executive Council, Senate and House we can well afford to be content. The magnitude of our contest and the importance of our victory are recognized and appreciated all over the land, and Maine is once more vindicating her motto as the Dirigo State.

The brilliant Republican success in our own city and county have completely demoralized the combination jugglers. Only a few days ago they were arrogantly claiming great accessions of Greenback strength and boasting that they would have thirty-five hundred opposition majority in Penobscot. Instead of that they find their majority of last year vanished and their organ last evening confessed that "in regard to the County ticket it is impossible to give any definite figures."

That is a tremendous change from 2,618 opposition majority last year, and we don't wonder that our opponents feel demoralized. The fact is that the County is so close that no one knows yet which side has carried it even on the Governor vote, while the cutting, splitting and scattering on the Senatorial and County ticket is very likely to elect some of the Republican candidates.

As soon as the Democratic fusionists were fully persuaded yesterday that the Republicans had carried the House and Senate, they at once began to threaten that they would cheat us out of our victory. Leading Democrats suggested several schemes for defrauding us of the fruits of our victory, and one of them threateningly declared "You cheated us in the count for President, but we have the Returning Board here in Maine." We want to say to all who indulge in such fancies or such threats, that the Republicans of Maine do not propose to be cheated out of their rights, and that it would not be healthy for Garcelon and his Council to attempt any such high-handed game as was played a few years ago in New Hampshire. Having elected a Republican House and Senate the Republicans of Maine will see to it that DANIEL F. DAVIS shall be duly elected and inaugurated Governor of Maine!

POLITICAL PROSCRIPTION.

The opposition have had so much to say without any basis in the way of charging Republicans with political intimidation, that we feel it our duty to report another case that has been brought to our notice.

We are informed that Mr. Charles Humphrey, a voter in Ward 5, who has been employed in the shingle shed of Mr. C. A. Nealley, on Exchange st., exercised the privilege of voting the Republican ticket on Monday, and that on his return from the polls in the afternoon Mr. Nealley, his employer, said to him: "Young man, there is no more work here for you," and thus discharged him for having voted according to his own judgement.

We hope that some of our Republican business men will see to it that this young man is not deprived of a chance to earn his living simply because he chooses to vote for Republican principles.

THE BANNER COUNTY.

[From the Lewiston Journal.]

The Republicans of Penobscot have made a gain of 2,193. This fairly entitles that county to the banner. For this result credit is due to Captain Boutelle of THE BANGOR WHIG, Senator Hamlin and scores of other Republicans who have proved themselves a host in the contest.

Outside of Maine the sweeping victory achieved by the Republicans in that State over a powerful and determined combination will have a most powerful and salutary influence. It shows that the intelligent voters who have made the Republican party a power in the land the past quarter of a century still have faith in its principles and can be relied upon to support them in seasons of danger.—Boston Journal.

The Commercial prints a lot of editorial extracts from other newspapers not at all complimentary to the fusion fiasco in this State. For example it copies this from its recent ally the Boston Herald:

"The Greenback party of Maine has ceased to grow before reaching man's estate, and it has no future. For, though it gets more votes than last year, it gets from the Democrats by policy and not by conviction. The disease is not spreading. Next year Maine will be a strong Republican state again."

The Republicans made a gain of 62 even in that Greenback hot-bed Camden—thanks to the vigorous efforts of T. R. Simonton, Esq., and other zealous Republicans.

THE STATE SENATE.

The Senators elected as far as ascertained are as follows. Those printed in italics are Fusion, the others Republican:—

Androscoggin—Jeremiah Dingley, Jr., Auburn; George Parcher, Leeds.

Aroostook—Lyman S. Strickland, Houlton.

Cumberland—Joseph A. Locke, Portland; Henry C. Brewer, Freeport; David Duran, Casco; Andrew Hawes, Deering.

Franklin—G. R. Fernald, Wilton.

Hancock—N. T. Hill, Bucksport; Hiram D. Coombs, Gouldsboro.

Kennebec, Colby C. Cornish, Winslow, Joseph S. Berry, Wayne.

Knox, Nelson Thompson, Friendship.

Lincoln, Andrew R. G. Smith, Whitefield.

Oxford, Charles Rankins, Hiram; Gilbert Barrett, Buckfield.

Penobscot, Four Senators still in doubt. Piscataquis—Levi C. Flint, Monson.

Sagadahoc—Edwin D. Lamson, Richmond.

Somerset—A. F. Purlin, Skowhegan; A Linn, Hartland.

Waldo—James D Lamson, Freedom, Randall W. Ellis, Belfast.

Washington—Austin Harris, East Machias; Alden Bradford, Eastport.

York—J. W. Dearborn, Parsonsfield, Charles P. Emery, Biddeford; George H. Wakefield, South Berwick.

The Democratic Boston Post asks Pillsbury the following question:

"Will surviving friends and relatives please comfort many anxious hearts with information as to what has become of the sixty thousand Democrats who made such a splendid show in the call for the convention which nominated Gov. Garcelon?"

The town of Wintersport reduced the majority of the Fusion Representative from 352 last year to 14 this year. The Wintersport and Frankfort class reduced the Fusion majority from 370 last year to 14 this. The Republican candidate, Mr. John Pierce, of the firm of Pierce, Rowe & Co., proved a most popular selection and made a fine run.

The Hon. Joseph B. Smith, of Oldtown, Oldtown, Maine, will never have to "draw up a message" as Governor of Maine. Never.—Journal.

The Washington Post, the Bourbon organ at the National Capital, concedes the Republican victory in Maine, and says that the formation of the Blaine boom may be considered to date from Monday.

We congratulate our State Committee colleagues, Col. Fred. N. Dow, of Cumberland, and Hon. Geo. C. Wing, of Auburn, upon the brilliant success of their campaign work in those counties.

All honor to Piscataquis for her gallant contest and signal victory. The Republicans of the sturdy little county have made a clean sweep and taken their place in the advance of the line. Great credit for this result is due to Hon. S. O. Brown, Hon. E. A. Thompson, C. H. B. Woodbury, Esq., Col. J. B. Peaks and other wide-awake Republicans.

Monson disputes Brownville's claim to the banner in Piscataquis, having increased the Republican majority from 47 last year to 124 this year.

Hon. O. C. Moore writes to his paper, the Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph "Mr Blaine's transfer from the turbulent House to the milder-mannered S nate has manifestly been to his great advantage. While losing none of his force and pungency, he has acquired a serebity of temper and bearing that gives to his telling facts and shewy arguments a resistless power and charm. Long the first debater in the country, Mr. Blaine, must now be regarded as one of its foremost orators. Having an exhaustless armory of facts and statistics, and a wit as ready as Sheridan's or Curran's, it is evident that his political influence is to broaden and deepen whether he remains in the Senate or goes up higher. Not yet fifty and in robust health, and with a personal following greater than that of any other man of America, his leadership in the Republican party for the next ten years will be hard to dispute."

Kennebec County has made a splendid record in the battle just closed, rolling up a heavy Republican majority and electing eleven Republican Representatives against two Fusionists. For the able management of the campaign in that County great credit is due to Joseph H. Manley, Esq., the Chairman of the County Committee, one of the staunchest Republicans and one of the most sagacious and energetic political organizers in the State.

The State has reason to be gratified at the election of so able and experienced a man as Hon. Eugene Hale to the popular branch of the Legislature, and Mr. Hale is entitled to congratulation upon the handsome Republican victory in his city and county.

Since the wreck of the large steamship Virginia, of the State line, last summer, on that huge sand bank in the sea known as Sable Island, the Dominion government has been contemplating further measures of relief for the mariners and ships annually wrecked on that dread coast. Sable Island, so called by the French on its discovery early in the 16th century, the word sable meaning sand in French, lies in the North Atlantic ocean off the east coast of Nova Scotia, about one day's sail from it from Halifax. It is twenty-five miles in length by from one to four in breadth and lies directly in the track of vessels sailing between New York and the various ports of Great Britain. Surrounded by sand bars which extend for miles into the sea and during a large portion of the time enveloped in dense fogs, and subject also to counter currents, it has long been known and avoided so far as be possible by navigators obliged to pass somewhere in its vicinity.

Notwithstanding the tragedy at Cabul by which the entire British Embassy, including Major Cavagnari, Chief Ambassador, with an escort, lost their lives, it is not believed as yet that the affair has anything more than a local and political significance. The Cabul populace have always been a mortorious, turbulent and unmanageable one. The wild Afghan race in fact are a race of robbers by instinct and tradition. They were unpaid for military service, and, in a measure, held the lately arrived Englishmen, with whom they had been at war, responsible for their poverty. In a spirit of revenge, barbarity or of plunder, they attacked the Embassy as they had previously attacked the Ameer's residence. The attack being resisted and returned at the Embassy, resulted in their massacre.

Ex-Governor Frederick Smyth, of New Hampshire, who accompanied General Butler on his yachting cruise, brought away from the Madeleine Islands, the lonely group in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, which is entirely cut off from the world during the Winter season, a sturdy boy of about twelve years. The lad's father made a present of him to Mr. Smyth, who intends to give him the advantages of New England civilization.

There is a decided unpleasantness between the former good friends, Cyrus W. Field and Samuel J. Tilden, in regard to the alleged railroad stock. Both were large owners, and Tilden, contrary to promise to Field, sold such a large amount of stock that it greatly depreciated the market value of the stock. Field says that "craft and trickery may make a politician, but not a statesman, and Tilden's chief power lies in these ignoble qualities."

THE CHISHOLM MURDER CASE.

MRS. CHISOLM FAINTS WHILE DESCRIBING THE HORRORS OF THE SCENE.

DELTA, Miss., Sept 8. The taking of testimony in the trial of Henry J. Gully for the murder of Cornelia Chisolm on April 29, 1875, began at 9 o'clock this morning. Seventy witnesses, thirty-two for the State and forty-eight for the defence, were sworn and put under the rule and excluded from the court room.

Mrs. Chisolm was the first witness. She testified that an excited crowd of men entered DeKalb on the evening of April 28, 1875. The crowd was largely increased on the following morning. Sheriff Sinclair, then Sheriff, arrested her husband on the morning of the 29th. He stated he placed under guard at his own house, and has sought an instant investigation of the charges against him. Armed men kept coming around the house. Sheriff Sinclair conversed with them and then talked to Chisolm. Chisolm told one of the crowd: "You are a cowardly scoundrel. You will kill me before evening, but before you do it I will make some of you bite the dust." Sinclair came to my husband at about 11 o'clock and said: "They say you must go to jail." McLellan, myself, my sons Clay, Johnie and Willie, and daughter Cornelia accompanied my husband to jail; we were obliging to him to shield his body; Mr. Moseley and Mr. Overstreet went inside the jail with the party, and the door of the lower floor of the jail was locked behind them; the family went up stairs and the door was locked on the inside.

I was sent home by my husband on an errand; heard firing as I came back toward the jail; saw the old man McLellan fall, pierced by several buckshot, behind the jail; rushed inside the jail and found the stairway crowded with men; Rosser was at the top of the stairs and William Gully was trying to break the lock of the upper door with a hammer. My daughter Cornelia, Willie, son Johnnie, and Mr. Overstreet were holding the door on the inside. My daughter's face was bleeding. Rosser said to my daughter: "——— your soul! I will blow your brains out if you don't get out of the way." Rosser fired the first shot through the broken lock, severing my son's hand from his arm. The door was here broken open and my little boy fell shot through the heart. Some one inside fired and Rosser fell dead. Two men caught him by the heels and dragged him down stairs. My husband was bewildered at the death of Johnnie. I and my son Clay carried the dead boy downstairs. Cornelia and her father came downstairs. Henry J. Gully came up and raised his gun. I closed the grated door at the bottom of the stairs. My daughter clasped my husband about the neck. Gully fired through the grates in the door, and my daughter screamed "I am shot" Judge Chisolm opened the door, and as he stepped out, Henry Gully came out of an adjoining room with another gun and fired at him and he fell. Clay and I assisted my husband in reaching home. My daughter was bleeding in the face; her eye was blackened by a blow; she was shot in the wrist, in the ankle and in the heel. She was shot by Henry Gully; she died on the 15th of May; she died from the effects of her wounds. Mrs. Chisolm produced Cornelia's bracelet which was broken and driven into her arm. Five buckshot were taken out of her body.

On cross-examination Mrs. Chisolm stated that she begged Rosser by the God that made him, the mother who bore him and the wife whom he loved to be satisfied with the blood of Gilmer and McLellan. He replied: "John Gully had a wife and he would shoot any woman who stood between himself and Judge Chisolm." The defence asked if she did not know Cornelia died from the effect of the operation, etc. Witness replied that she did not know it.

While describing the scene of her son Johnnie's death, Mrs. Chisolm fainted. When asked Sheriff Sinclair was not overpowered by the mob, she replied that she could not tell whether the Sheriff commanded the mob or the mob commanded the Sheriff.

Dr. Chamberlain, who waited on Cornelia Chisolm, testified that she died of the effect of her wounds; that one of the bones of her leg was injured, and two of the bones of her arm were broken by buckshot, and that she was wounded in the face by some blunt instrument; that no treatment could have saved her life.

Charles Rosenbaum testified. Came to town with Gilmer in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Britton; was followed to town by eight armed men; saw many others in town with guns. As we walked toward the jail we saw Virgin Gully shoot Gilmer in the back; Gilmer hallooed "Oh, Lordy, I'm killed" and ran down an alley, where he was followed and dispatched by the shot-gun of Virgin Gully. Rosenbaum corroborated the statement of Mrs. Chisholm as to the scenes in the jail. At the alarm of fire, witness ran out of jail, and did not see the shooting of Chisholm and his daughter. J. S. Morris is making a most vigorous prosecution.

The yellow fever is abating at Memphis, and the approach of cooler weather promises to terminate the epidemic at an early day. The disease has proved much less fatal than last year. The whole number of cases at Memphis is 1064 and the whole number of deaths 280.

Mississippi is unanimous for Jefferson Davis for United States Senator, with the exception that three-fifths of her voters are against it. But seeing they are only Republicans, they are of no sort of account. They were not rebels. How, then can they expect anything in the way of equal rights.

There ought to be some way of getting a return for the money of the people that has been spent by the Congressional Committees on the summer resorts. Why not have a history of their travels written up and sold as an advertisement of the various hotels that have been benefited by their patronage?—Phil. No. American.

A remarkable bicycle accident occurred at Philadelphia the other day. A young man named Hulseman, 29 years old, while crossing a bridge, fell against the stone parapet, which, being out of repair, gave way and carried him into the stream many feet below. He struck on the rocks and lay there one hour before he was discovered, and died soon after being taken to his home.

THE STATE ELECTION.

CLOSE RUN ON THE POPULAR VOTE

LAST YEAR'S COMBINED MAJORITY WIPED OUT.

AUGUSTA Sept 10. The Kennebec Journal received returns of the vote for Governor in 376 towns and plantations. The total vote cast in these is 124,-271 divided as follows Davis 62,552, Smith 42,911 Garcelon 18,559, Sept. 249. Smith 4,563; Garcelon 259, total 13,023 The opposition Republicans had a majority in these towns and plantations last year of 1,252 The same ratio of increase of the remaining towns not heard from as in the towns whose vote has been received would give a total vote of the State at the last election of 139 000 against a total vote last year of 126,169 and an equal ratio of Republican gains in these 123 towns and plantations as in the rest of the State would leave Mr Davis lacking from 300 to 400 votes of an election by the people.

The number who have visited that beautiful locality this year is far in excess of any previous year, and the hotels have been taxed to their greatest capacity, to say nothing of the hundreds who have camped out on the many delightful spots with which the shores and islands of the lake abound. The fact is also becoming more generally known that the next six weeks are among the finest part of the year for visiting the lake, and the visitors of the present season are extending their sojourn later than ever before, and many of them will enjoy the delight of seeing the lake in all its beauty of autumnal tints. Additional accommodations will be an absolute necessity another season.

A FALL OF TWENTY-EIGHT FEET. Yesterday afternoon as three carpenters were at work on the new house on the corner of Summer and Emerson streets, the staging gave away and they fell to the ground, a distance of some twenty-eight feet. One of them by the name of Smith had one of his ribs started and injured his back somewhat and another by the name of Starbird had his legs quite badly bruised. A son of Mr. Smith escaped uninjured. The accident was caused by overloading the staging and it is a wonder that all three of the men were not seriously injured.

No accurate genealogical history appears to have been prepared, but a general wish was expressed that some competent person would undertake the work, and inviatory steps were taken to have it done. To this end all members of the family are requested to send to Rev. Rufus Emery, Newburg, N. Y., an accurate statement of their own genealogy, and such additional facts as are known of others, with a view of having as complete a history as may be obtained, to be deposited with the N. E. From the Troy Times.—Who has not suffered from corns, bunions, club and inverted nails, enlarged and diseased joints, chilblains, frosted feet, etc.? Who has not been willing to make almost any sacrifice and incur any expense to effect their cure; but as years rolled on and no relief came, the sufferer has concluded they were inevitable evils, and has endured martyrdom from these apparently simple causes which have tormented more people than any other ailment of the human frame! There is none that entail agonies so great or suffering more severe. We are glad to know that corns will soon be numbered among things of the past, owing to the skill of Dr. Briggs, the far-famed Surgeon, whose success in treating diseases of the feet almost surpasses belief. His method involves no pain, no drawing of blood, and no application to the foot, but the result is the patient is effectually relieved in such a manner as to excite both wonder and gratitude.

Consult Dr. Josiah Briggs for a few days from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. at the Bangor House, where he will treat scientifically and successfully all excrescences of the feet, hands or face, warts, wens, moles, birthmarks, specks, blotches, and all blemishes banished.

We had heard and read much about the Doctor's skill, but a practical experience is better than hearsay. Our experience—great comfort with feet that have suffered pain untold for years. (Continued.)

Colonel De Tracy, if a singular, was yet a sensible man. He had asked duty, not affection, of his partner, and was too wise to disgust her by doting fondness. They were an exemplary couple; he attentive to her comfort and wishes, she deferentially consulting his. But at heart beloved her with a proud affection. He was gratified by the readiness with which she ruled and modeled herself to his standard of female character, and her rare loveliness was an irresistible appeal to his feelings. Reserved to others, he unbent much of his formality in their private interviews; testifying his confidence in her discretion by conferring with her upon his most important projects. She knew her power better than he did. Until now, it had been a subject of indifference, awakening neither gratitude nor ambition; it suddenly magnified into an engine of incomparable force.

Others saw it as well. Eleanor cultivated an intimacy as assiduously as she had shunned her once. Her advances were met by a passive politeness she did not know whether to attribute to indifference or indolent pride. The Hazlitts did not experience this. Emily was naturally amiable, and her good traits had been developed by her husband's judicious influence. Mrs. De Tracy and himself were friends at sight; and her partiality extended to his family. His children were much at Oakland—the Colonel's place; not more frequently than Walter and Eddy De Tracy; but these last were never encouraged to visit "aunt's" boudoir, or to climb her lap, as wore the little Wilton and Emily.

They were at play in the parlor one day—Mrs. De Tracy reading apart—when a lisped oath from Walter caused her to lift her eyes.

"Sir, Walter! never use that word again!"

"Papa says it," said the boy, confidently.

"But not in the presence of ladies, sir!"

"Yes, ma'am' He told mamma so the other day, when Mr. Robinson dined with him. After he went away, papa came in to her room, and said '—— the lush!'"

"And what did your mother do?"

"She said, 'Dicey will be your ruin. Why don't you stop?' Who is Dicey, aunt?"

"One of your father's intimate acquaintances, I suspect," rejoined she, with a meaning smile.

Another thread of the web of Fate thrown into her grasp! Colonel De Tracy's hatred of gaming was inveterate—confirmed, it not formed by the circumstance that with his brother it had been an incurable passion, he having committed suicide in a rage of disappointment at his ill-fortune at Rouge-et-Noir. The manner of his death was carefully concealed from his son, until his uncle discovered that the propensity was hereditary. Edward was then at West Point. The Colonel made a journey thither, disclosed the whole, sad story; paid his debts of honor, and swore solemnly to disgrace and beggar him if he repeated the offence.

Mrs. De Tracy had gathered rumors of her step-nephew's embarrassments—unpardonable, in view of his wife's fortune and his uncle's liberality, and suspected foul play. Robinson was a noted sporting character; his name—as Captain De Tracy's guest—was enough to awaken surmises prejudicial to his character. She waited patiently, watchfully for proof. Supports to her convictions were abundant; but it was long before she could procure positive evidence against the wary gamester. What she was sure were losses, he explained as retrenchments and talked prudently of "foolish expenditures for plain country people," and of his wish "to lay by a pretty fortune for each of his children." A pair of carriage-horses were sold; "Eleanor was afraid to ride after them," the carriage followed, "he wanted a lighter vehicle." His absences from home were more frequent and prolonged and Eleanor's perturbed demeanor would have touched a less vindictive heart than that of the woman she had so cruelly injured.

So passed spring, summer, autumn, and Time ushered in another winter.

"I have an invitation for you," said Eleanor, entering her uncle's study. "Wilton is to be married at last, and writes pressingly for us all to come to Lisle Hall. Here is his letter to you, uncle."

"Whom does he marry?" asked Mrs De Tracy.

"A Miss Somebody or Nobody from the lower country. I never heard of her before, but he is so odd, we did not hope for a brilliant match from him. Indeed, I wonder at his marrying at all. He is thirty-two years old! I quite long to have him see you, you will be mutually pleased."

"I hope so," answered she, carelessly.

"You would like to go, then?" inquired the Colonel.

He liked to show his wife, and, moreover, had a sincere friendship for Wilton; so an acceptance was sent. Mrs De Tracy manifested more interest in this visit than was consistent with her usual fashionable nonchalance. Her husband smiled at her occasional flutter of expectation or pleasure, in the preparation for, and during the journey. Obeying a characteristic whim, he had avoided questioning her with regard to her early life. To him, her existence commenced with his acquaintance. Having ascertained that she had no near connections to interfere with his rights, he made her a De Tracy, and chose to forget that she had ever borne another name.

At Wilton's invitation, a wild, ungovernable desire to revisit her former home, and see their only friend, took possession of her, and mingled without was a foreboding, triumphant, yet agitating, of a coming crisis, a belief that another, and the most marvellous, was to be added to the startling coincidences of her eventful life.

It was a chilly, rainy evening when they reached Lisle Hall—still a mansion of noble proportions, but dwindled from her memory's picture. Wilton met them upon the steps, and hurried them into the house with an hospitable welcome. Upon the threshold was a girlish figure with a face of changing smiles and blushes. Passing an arm around each, Wilton said, reassuringly—

"Mary, this is your sister Eleanor."

The smile faded, and the color deepened upon the timid bride's cheek, as her lips touched the icy ones of her sister-in-law; but Alfred Hazlitt's joyous greeting and his wife's kiss restored the bloom. Agnes and Mr. Schmidt were there also. They seemed to have given themselves up to the cultivation of the animal to the infinite detriment of their intellectual natures. His bushy whiskers had a streak or two of gray, and her hair was growing scanty; but their excessive obesity made these trifling disfigurements appear of no consequence, being in itself a sufficient disguise to those who had not seen them for nine years. Wilton acted the host well; but, as Eleanor had predicted, one of the company had his especial notice. Alfred and his charming partner engaged the modest "Mary" in conversation; the Colonel challenged Mr. Schmidt to a game of chess; Edward lounged in a fauteuil, listening, apparently, to Eleanor's chat with her sister; and Wilton stationed himself by Mrs. De Tracy.

The Past throbbed along her pulses at his remembered voice. He alone was unchanged. His most honored guest, his gentle courtesy, did not exceed that he had paid her as the humble mistress of a mechanic's cottage. Her emotion, hidden as it was, touched a responsive chord. He became strangely interested in his fair visitor.

"Excuse me," he said, at length, gazing admiringly upon her classically moulded face; "but you certainly are not quite a stranger to me. We must have met before."

"Probably." Her voice was untremulous. "You have travelled, and we resided abroad for some time. The face of a countrywoman seen under such circumstances, would not be forgotten soon."

"Perhaps we did meet. My memory retains features as faithfully as events, and holds both too tightly for my comfort, sometimes."

"And do you, the enfant gate of Fortune and Love, speak of forgetfulness as a blessing? Of what would you seek oblivion—of injuries or benefits?"

"Of my injuries, and the misfortunes of others."

"Would it not be wiser to profit by the experience you have gained, than to bury recollection?"

"If I can profit by it," he replied; "but if the injury cannot be atoned for, the misfortune is irreparable: all that is left for us to do is to forget."

Mrs. De Tracy retired at an early hour, upon the plea of fatigue, and, in accordance with her earnest request, was permitted to leave the parlor alone. She dismissed her maid when she had removed her satin robe, and hastily donned her travelling-dress in its stead. Then she threw a large shawl over her head, opened the door, and, after listening a moment, glided down the staircase, through the hall, out into the pitchy night. The dazzling rain fell steadily; but she paused not; she trod the well-known lane—past the Clear-spring—its bubbling unruffled by the swollen waters—she gained the cottage. It was dark and still—evidently unmhabited. She could just discern its outlines through the gloom; but she felt for the broad door-step, and in the shelter of the rude porch laid herself upon it. The rain plashed mournfully from the eaves and from the elm-boughs, the wind echoed her sighs. The stone was wet with tears—the first she had shed since her mother's death—and these were of a fiery, bitter flood, such as those who weep them should pray never to have renewed. One half hour to memory and grief—she arose.

"This injury cannot be atoned for: this loss is irreparable; yet I do not court forgetfulness!"

RELIABLE TESTIMONIALS.

[From Bishop Williams—A Tribune.]

I most warmly recommend Dr. J. Briggs to all persons afflicted with the misery of corns. He has relieved me most speedily and effectually, and I heartily wish these words of mine may be of service to him

J. WILLIAMS,
Bishop of Connecticut.

Middletown, Conn., April 24, 1878.

The following compliment is from the Rev. Dr Geesy.

It gives me pleasure to give this certificate to Dr J Briggs, who most expertly and successfully operated upon my feet, removing without pain a troublesome corn. I recommend him to all alike afflicted

SAMUEL H. GIESY

Norwich, Conn, Oct 18th, 1878.

The following from Rev Dr Wheeler is another evidence that Dr Briggs merits the confidence of those afflicted with ailments of the feet. The wound need not fear long pain

I have known Dr. Briggs for eighteen years and can recommend him to all who are troubled with their feet as a most skilful operator in removing corns, quickly and without pain

FRANCIS B WHEELER.

Poughkeepsie, New York, June 5th, 1874.

The following from the late Dr. Raymond, president of Vassar college, Poughkeepsie, N Y, ought to convince the timid and sceptical that Dr Briggs performs his operations skillfully, thoroughly, satisfactorily and without pain

"It is more than eight years since Dr. Briggs relieved me of the tormentors, from which I had suffered for twenty-eight years previously. He is entitled to the testimony that the operation, which was entirely without pain, was so successful that I have not experienced the least trouble from that source since.

J H RAYMOND, LL D.

Vassar College, June 2d, 1874

Read the following from Professor Farrar, formerly of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., at present of Milwaukee, and I then consider it if it is wise to suffer unnecessary torments from corns, bunions, etc

"This is to certify that I have experienced the happy results of the skill of Dr briggs, and I cheerfully declare that nothing I have heard of him or from him exceeds a truthful description of his works His surgery is completely successful and without pain.

CHARLES S FARRAR,
Professor of Chemistry and Physics.

Vassar College, June 2, 1874"

The following, from Prof Orton, is another proof of the skill and success pertaining to Dr Briggs, in the practice of this profession

This is to certify that Dr. Briggs has removed corns for myself and members of my family, with perfect success, and without giving the slightest pain or discomfort. This statement is made absolutely and thankfully. The Doctor thoroughly understands his business.

WILLIAM LLOYD,
Pastor of Washington St M E Church.

Poughkeepsie, N Y, June 5th, 1874

The following from Rev. Dr Hageman, is an other evidence that Dr Briggs performs all he promises in a skillful manner

Poughkeepsie, June 6th, 1874

Dr Briggs—Dear Sir Your operation on me morning from me three corns without pain, was to my entire satisfaction. I can with much pleasure and confidence commend all who suffer from the same cause to your skilful hand

Yours truly, etc, CHAS S. HAGEMAN.

Read the following testimonial from Rev Dr. Meyers to the delicate skill and success of Dr. Briggs in his profession

From a short but pleasant experience with Dr. Briggs, I cordially commend him as a skillful and successful operator.

H MEYERS.

Milton by the Hudson June 6th, 1874.

Still another evidence that Dr Briggs merits the confidence and patronage of those troubled with affections of the feet.

The pain of many years disappeared before the skillful hand of Dr Briggs, he painlessly removed for my wife a number of corns, one of which was very large and deep, and for myself that child those that promised fair to be a source of pain and trouble We cordially commend him to any and all that need such benefactor

A. L. CULVER
Pastor Methodist M E Church

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 6th, 1874

Read the following from Dr Carter and be convinced

Eight years ago Dr Briggs removed a callosity, (miscalled corn) apparently superficial, which was very large and deep, and for myself that child those that promised fair to be a source of pain and trouble We cordially commend him to any and all that need such benefactor
